American Fishing Licenses Revoked—Feeling Against American Fishermen in the Pro-

OTTAWA, May 4, 1869. In the House of Commons Mr. Savery moved for the return of the licenses issued to American fisher-men during the last year. He held that the treaty to bays, and that while not adopting a prohibitory policy such a license fee should be imposed as would be some equivalent for the privileges of allowing Americans to fish in Canadian waters.

Several members from the maritime previnces spoke in support of the motion, stating that a firmer policy should be adopted towards the States to meet the exactions and restrictions imposed on Canadian trade.

mr. Anglin, from Nova Scotia, advocated the total exclusion of foreign fishermen from the fishing grounds. He said, in many cases owing to the en-croachments of American fishermen, Nova Scotians had been driven off their own fishing coasts. The motion was adopted.

Tragedy at Charlotte Court House-A Negro Shot by a White Man-Particulars of the Affair-Result of the Inquest-Order for the Arrest of Those Concerned.

RICHMOND, May 4, 1869.

A tragedy occurred at Charlotte Court House, Va. yesterday, in which Joseph Holmes, a negro mem-ber of the late Constitutional Convention, lost his life. A few weeks since John Marshall, a son of Judge Marshall, of that county, was fired at in the night while in his residence by some unknown perat the village, and there recognized a negro whom he suspected of having attempted to assassinate him. Marshall charged the negro with the crime, and he at once fied into the woods and was pursued without avail. A few hours afterwards Joseph Hoimes, who was formerly body servant of Judge Marshall, encountered young Marshall and threatened to have him arrested. A fight thereupon ensued, and both parties having pistols firing commenced—Marshall aided by his friends. Holmes was shot through the breast, and staggering to the Court House fell dead. An inquest was heid, the jury returning a verdict that deceased came to his death from a gun shot wound at the hands of some person unknown. The affair creates the greatest excitement in the county, where Holmes was exceedingly popular among the negroes, having been elected to the convention by 2,000 majority over a white candidate. An order has been issued for the arrest of Marshall and party, but they have not yet been appfehended. at the viliage, and there recognized a negro whom he Warm Debate Over the Tax Commissioners' Bill.

Hurried and Confused Legislation-The Appropriation Bill in the Senate-The Sheriff's Bill Passed-The Tax Commissioners' Bill Hangs Fire. ALBANY, May 4, 1869.

The legislation to-day was such a confused mass that one can hardly pick anything out of it. The Senate spent nearly the whole day discussing the Appropriation bill, and at this writing are still so d. No contest arose on the Sheriff's in the House. The amendments made in the Senate were not disputed, and, therefore, the bill passed by a vote satisfactory to its friends-74 to 25-and as agreeable to the Sheriff himself, who watched its fate on the floor, as could be expected under the cir-fate on the floor, as could be expected under the circumstances.

A skirmish on the Canal bill for an appropriation of $10.000.000 amounted to hitle, as a two-thirds vote could not be obtained. The opposition was well met by the friends of the canals, foremost among whom was Mr. Bender, of Buffalo, who represents the head waters of the Eric Canal.

Mr. Piunkett succeeded in passing the bill for the recovery of the Doherty property in the Twenty-second ward, which was escheated.

Both branches of the Legislature are getting nearly worn out with work, and it is not improbable that if the Tax Levy, Appropriation and Supply bills can be got through with this week that a concurrent resolution to adjourn on Friday next may prevail.

bulls can be got through with this week that a concurrent resolution to adjourn on Friday next may prevail.

At the afternoon session of the Assembly an interesting family feud in the republican party occurred on the discussion upon the Tax Commissioners' bill.
The democrats on the floor sat sitently by and enjoyed the quarrel, feeling, no doubt, that there was no necessity to spoil the "Kitkenny cat" business in which their opponents were engaged. Several republicans, led off by Hegeman, of Dutchess, supported the bill and had to submit to a severe castigation from Husted, of Westchester, and McLeod, of New York. The latter made a rambling, violent partisan oration, which very few heard and nobody paid attention to. Husted was, as usual, trite and vehement. He threatened that the republicans who voted for the bill would never be sent back by their constituency, and deciared the republican party in the House to be disintegrated and demoralized. He gave all honor to the democratic members for their uniform adhesion to party rule and the fidelity with which they held to the authority of their Tammany leaders. He could not say so much for his own party, who had again and again during the session gone over to the enemy, and, whether they accepted the thirty pieces of silver, like Judas, on this occasion or not, would be likely to meet the fate of Judas at the hands of their consituency. All this and much more severe and bitter words did the Westchester champion hurl at the heads of the members of his party who had voted for this bill. Hegeman made a furious reply, in the best speech he delivered this session. He said he voted as an honest man and would throw himself upon his constituents for a justification of his course. Upon motion of Jacobs the bill passed to a third reading, and thence to its sinal passage by a vote of 76 to 46.

VETO MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

During the discussion on the Canal Enlargement resolution, the Governor's Secretary appeared with a veto to the bill amending the act in relation to a certain highway taxes in Hamilton county, passed in 1867, as amended by the law a veto to the bill amending the act in relation to a certain highway and certain highway taxes in Hamilton county, passed in 1867, as amended by the law of 1868.

The act which the bill proposes to amend directs the Comptroller to pay over certain moneys to the special commissioner named in the act. Out of these moneys the commissioners are authorized to retain certain sums as compensation for their services—their accounts to be first audited, allowed and certified by the said Comptroller, upon a detailed statement of such services, duly verified by the commissioners claiming such compensation, and upon such other evidence as the Comptroller may require. It appears that in 1867 the Commissioner filed with the comptroller a report of moneys received, their charges and disbursements. The Comptroller refused and still refuses to allow the account so rendered. The bill, without making provision for an investigation or recxamination, directs the Comptroller to pay these claims as presented, and strikes out the provision of the original act for the future auditing of similar accounts. The Governor submits that it is not a wise policy to take from the Comptroller the power to audit these accounts. There should be responsibility for the expenditure to some supervisory authority. The bill confers extraordinary powers on special commissioners. Relating to the tax upon certain towns for roads running through others, requires the commissioners of certain towns to assess a highway tax upon lands owned by non-residents for the benefit of their road. It authorizes the commissioners to borrow $2,000 on the credit of these highway taxes; but the bill contains no explicit directions for the use thereof. The special commissioners seem invested with power to claim all non-resident taxes in the towns, At the same time the commissioners are made responsible to no one. On account of these extraordinary provisions the bill is returned for revision.

YACHTING.

The Proposed Anglo-American Yacht Race— The English and American Modes of Measurement.

[From the Pall Mall Gazette, April 15.1 The NEW YORK HERALD, which writes with some authority on yachting matters, has some very fair comments on the hitch which has occurred in the comments on the littch which has occurred in the proposed Anglo-American yacht race across the Atlantic. The point in dispute is this: By New York measurement the Dauntless, which is to compete with Mr. Ashbury's yacht, is about the same tounage as the Cambria, whereas by Thames measurement she is double the size. Mr. Ashbury, taking the measurement of his own country, is therefore called upon to compete with a vessel which he believes to be heavier in tonnage than his own. The two modes of measurement ought to be equalized, but this cannot be done in time for the proposed race, and Mr. Ashbury has referred the whole dispute to the arbitrament of the yacht congress. The Herald-—in other words, Mr. Bennett—admits that Mr. Ashbury "puts handsomely in the attitude of a man who desires only fair play." At the same time it warns American yachtisen not to expect easy victories this summer over their English cousins. The English yacht is built on fine lines, while the American yacht is broad and avoids depth. The writer observes that both models may have been suggested by different waters and different winds. "May not our model be the best in our own broad rivers, or in the long sweep of the ocean, and the English model best in such chopping seas as the Channel". The forthcoming contests will perhaps throw light on this question, and we hope with Mr. Ashbury that some way may be found out of the difficulty which threatens to put an end to the principal race—that between the Dauntless and the Cambria. roposed Anglo-American yacht race across the Yacht Race.

[From the London Dally News, April 24.]
It will be recollected that Mr. J. Ashbury, owner of the celebrated English yacht Cambria, has thrown out a challenge to America for a race across the Atlantic to compete for the cup carried off by America some years since. Considerable correspondence has taken place as to the conditions of the contest, and the measurement of the respective vessels. The Cambria, after undergoing important alterations at Cowes during the winter, arrived off Brighton on Thursday to take in stores preparatory to a short cruise to test the efficacy of the new arrangements.

Brighton on Intersacy to take in stores preparatory to a short craise to test the efficacy of the new arrangements.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Ashbury entertained a select party of friends at a sumptuous repast, served on board the yacht Cambria. Among those present were Lord Sussex Lennox, Mr. M. D. Scott and Dr. Pickford (deputy lieutenants for the county of Sussex), Colonel Burrard (Grenadier Guards), Colonel Johnston, Colonel Croffton, Captain Boyle, Royal Navy, Captain Colonion, &c. Lord Lennox, in complimentary terms, proposed "The health of Mr. Ashbury, and success to the Cambria in all her undertakings." Mr. Ashbury, in acknowledging the compliment, referred to the approaching international contest. He said he should spare neither trouble nor expense to uphold not only the reputation of the Cambria, but also the honor and pride of this country in yachting matters. He wished our consins across the Atlantic well, but at the same time he wished ourselves better. (Cheers.) It was not for him to express any opinion as to what the result of the race might be. Although the cup was of the intrinsic value of only 100 guineas, it had been in the possession of America for seventeen years, and no one had had the pluck or the energy to in the possession of America for seventeen year and no one had had the pluck or the energy te compete for it. He thought the fact that had been held so long showed that it was wort competing for. He had been told that a number of persons were going from London to New York te see the result of the race, and that the amount of money that would change hands in connection with independent of the thought the fact that it had been fold being only other than the most of the properties for. He had been fold that a number of see the result of the race, and that the amount of monor than would change hands in connection with the control of the race, and that the amount of monor than would change hands in connection with the control of the result, would not put £5 into his pocket, neither than the could gain would be the cup. Yesterday was deemed a fair day, as the sun shone; but a terrific gale prevailed during the whole afternoon, much to the annoyance of the spectators, besides being detrimental to fast time. In addition, the track itself was heavy, and in some places on the back side rather slippery than otherwise. The race was a match for $2,000, mile heats, best hree in five, in harness, the first of the two made by the respective owners of the two mares, the other eing to wagon for a like amount of money and to come off on Monday next. Since the matches were made Lady Thorn has been a decided favorite among betting men, and thousands of dollars were wagered at long olds, generally ranging at abou two to one and sometimes higher on her. Just be fore the start the current odds was about 100 to 40 on Lady Thorn. This was due in a great measure to her prestige as queen of the turf, many deeming it imposeible for her to be beaten under any circumstance by her competitor, or, in fact, by any other horse now on the turf. Her backers were not disappointed in this instance, as she did better than was generally expected she would do under the unfavorable circumstances dependent on the race. She looke hardly fit for a bruising race, being rather too full of flesh and possessing a general grossness of appearance. She has hardly had time to wear off her winter's keep, the weather having been so bad that she was denied the sharpening exercise she should have had. This race will, no doubt, prove beneficial to her, and put her in proper trim for the event of next Monday. She was in much the same condition yesterday as she was when she commenced her cam she was too lusty for quick and lasting work. But trotted bravely and successfully throughout the en it seems that it was just the thing for her, as she trotted bravely and successfully throughout the entire season, being beaten in only three races out of seventeen. This season may be a counterpart of the last; still she will have horses to contend with this season superior to any she ever had before.

American Girl, although deleated, showed herself to be a formidable that under a different state of things, as regards preparation and driving, she might have won the race, as she showed a very high rate of speed, as will be seen in our detailed account of the heats. Two weeks ago her condition was apparently better than it was yesterday; but even then her appearance indicated that she had had entirely too much work during the winter, and not sufficient rest to have recuperated the wasted energies of last year's severe labors. She is a young mare, just about seven years old, and required as much skill in her management otherwise as in her handling, so that she may not be perpetually exhausted. As it is, there is probably no animal of her age to be found anywhere that could have made such a race as she did yesterday, her speed being so great that she appeared able to pass and retain a position in front of Lady Thorn whenever she pleased; but she had been overtrained, was somewhat flighty and beyond the control of her trainer and driver. Peter Manae. So much dissatisfaction was expressed after the termination of the second heat that another driver, Dan Mace, had to be substituted in his stead. Had the latter driver of American Girl driven her throughout the result of the race might have been different, as his tactics seemed the most expedient under the circumstances. Believing that American Girl had the greatest speed he adopted the trailing system, and never made an effort to beat Lady Thorn until he got on the homestretch. His first attempt, which was in the third heat, came hear being successful, as American Girl driven her throughout the result so of the race might have been different, as his tactics seemed th enough when she was called on, and was beaten in consequence.

The attendance at the track was numerous and highly respectable, it being composed in great part of gentlemen who are owners of the fineat horses in the country, but who rarely visit the race tracks, and then only on occasions of great moment. Of course there was the usual attendance of sporting men, of men who rarely fail to visit the race track under any circumstances, and also many strangers from many parts of the country who had come on here either for pleasure or to witness the great billiard tournament that is now in progress in this city. We have seen larger assemblages at trots, but at this the number of spectators was greater than is usually seen at a postponed race, no matter what the quality of the horses may be. The number would have been still larger had the public been confident that the trot would positively have taken place, as the chance of the race coming off was considered precarious in the morning. The tendency of the race yesterday has been to unsettle the opinions of the sporting men as to the merits of these two mares, and as they trot again next Monday to wagons, a specialty in which they both excel, no one can predict what the odds will be. There is no doubt that Lady Thorn will be the favorite, but American Girl will still have a host of backers, especially should the odds be long against her. There is no two to one between them, particularly if American Girl is everything as regards condition, and is driven with judgment by a man wao understands her peculiarities.

We now give a detailed account of

THE RACE.

First Heat.—There was no time lost in unnecessary scoring, as the horses were warmed up and ready for action by the time the judges had taken their positions on the stand. American Girl won the sary scoring, as the norses were warmen up and ready for action by the time the judges had taken their positions on the stand. American Girl won the pole. As they got away Lady Thorn had half a length the best of it, but American Girl soon went to the front and led a length around the turn. This advantage she carried to the quarter pole in thirty six seconds. Going down the backstretch she opened the gap and showed half a length of day-light going as steadily as possible. She reached the

to the Lady and take her measure. Deeming everything safe, he then fell back, and was nearly two lengths in the rear at the three-quarter pole. He now determined to enter upon the struggle for victory, and, rousing the energies of his mare, made a dash for the lead. He gained rapidly on Lady Thora, and succeeded in reaching her head and carrying her to a break and then into a run. At this instant the crowd became wildly excited, and, yelling like demons, so excited American Girl that she too broke up, and both mares went over the score on a run. The judges decided it to be a dead heat. The time was 2:30½. The result of this heat highly clated the backers of American Girl, who clustered around Mace and expressed their admiration of bis great generalship, and also their hope of ultimate victory.

ciated the backers of American Giri, who clustered around Mace and expressed their admiration of Magreat generalship, and also their hope of ultimase victory.

Fourth Heat.—The result of the last heat had revived the spirits of the backers of American Giri so much that they were again willing to invest on her and to lay thirty against a hundred on the result. Mace again came up behind, but was so far off from Lady Thorn that the judges refused to give the word. This was repeated; but on the third attempt the judges, finding him determined to trait, gave the word as desired. Lady Thorn was again sudered to lead around the turn and go to the quarter pole two and a haif lengths in front. She passed that point in thirty-seven and a haif seconds, and the half-mile pole in the same way is 1:13½. It was not until he entered on the Flushing end that Mace manifested a disposition opress the trotting. He was in no haste even to do it then, and not until he was near the three-quarter pole did he go up to Lady Thorn's wheei. Turning into the homestretch Pilfer chose for his position-the outside of the track, which was deemed the best for speed, leaving the Inside portion for Mace, who now urged his mare to the utmost for the struggle. She responded galiantly and gained gradually all the way up and seemed to be winning, but before she had succeeded in capturing Lady Thorn, who was trotting with all her might, American Girl left her feet and all was over, the brush having been too long for her in her then condition. Lady Thorn won by two lengths. Time of heat 2:29½. The following is a
